Course: AP Literature and Composition

Course Description

The primary goal of this course is to help you develop your abilities as a reader and a writer, especially as a critic and appreciator of literature. It is a course, as Donna Tartt writes in The Goldfinch, for “people who have loved beautiful things, and looked out for them, and pulled them from the fire, and sought them when they were lost, and tried to preserve them and save them while passing them along literally from hand to hand, singing out brilliantly from the wreck of time to the next generation of lovers, and the next.”

Since the intent of the course is to develop your growing independence of thought and critical thinking, you are responsible for putting forth your best effort on a consistent basis. Regular time should be committed to improving your skills as a reader, writer, discussor, and thinker, especially since you will see the most growth in your abilities with the most practice. Just as you would need to exercise regularly to improve your endurance and strength, so, too, do you need to think and write regularly about what you have read to improve your ability to understand and form opinions about the demanding works of prose fiction, nonfiction, drama, and poetry that we read in this course. Writing will be one manner in which we work to develop your skills. You will write to explore ideas you generate, express opinions about the literature and critical reviews, analyze the language of the author, and practice stylistic elements. You will be given frequent opportunities to write and rewrite in a variety of modes. Regular participation in classroom discussions will also be necessary and a vital means of testing your ideas and assessing your understanding.

In this class, you will be exposed to a variety of authors from different cultures, historical periods, and philosophies, primarily focusing on the 16th century to the present. As Solzhenitsyn says, “One word of truth outweighs the world.” Be looking for the truth that is offered to us through these voices; be willing to expand your thinking and appreciate diverse points of view.

The curriculum is designed to meet the requirements as presented in the AP English Course Description provided by College Board.

Texts and materials:

Hamlet by William Shakespeare

Alias Grace by Margaret Atwood

Sing, Unburied, Sing by Jesmyn Ward

Book Love

Book Club

Additional readings provided by teacher

We are a paperless classroom – with a few exceptions, plan to access resources online via our Canvas.

This course will involve substantial class discussion. Attendance and class participation are therefore required. You need to have completed the assigned reading for each class and be prepared to make thoughtful, interactive contributions to discussion.

Appropriate Conduct

The guiding principle in our personal conduct will be RESPECT. Respect others. Respect others' property. And respect yourself. During class discussion, by all means feel free to disagree with others if you do not share their opinions, but do so politely. Others will be more willing to listen to you if you act and speak with dignity. Our class should be a safe place for everyone.

Please note that I truly believe in the saying “no question is a stupid question.” More often than not, you will not be the only one wondering about a topic and asking a question will be beneficial to your classmates. Please speak up! But also listen to what your classmates are saying, keep an open mind, and do not interrupt others when they are speaking—I will make sure everyone has a chance to be heard.

Plagiarism is entirely unacceptable and we will follow district policy and consequences. How to avoid plagiarism

Additional requirements:

- Students will check Canvas regularly. On Canvas you will find the Daily Agenda, as well as the course calendar.
- Per English department policy, all cell phones will be put away during class time unless the teacher requests you take it out.
- To discuss an issue with a grade students will:
 - Email or Remind message me to make an appointment.
 - Wait 24 hours from when an assignment is handed back.
 - Approach the discussion in a reasonable manner and in a way that seeks understanding.

Grading

10% of your grade will be FORMATIVE: 90% will be SUMMATIVE. What does that mean?:

- ❖ For this class, formative work is usually practicing the skills we're learning, is usually lower-stakes, and is more about your engagement with class activities, homework, and discussion. Formative work usually happens when we're building/practicing a skill, as opposed to showing your mastery in a higher stakes setting. This translates to a variety of things in the gradebook: daily homework assignments, informal discussions/participation, daily student engagements in class activities, responses, some lower-stakes quizzes, etc.
- ❖ For this class, summative work is usually a more formal demonstration of the mastery of skills we've learned in class and is usually higher-stakes. Summative work usually happens when we're showing mastery of a skill(s) on, typically, more substantive assessments. Again, this translates to a variety of things in the gradebook: tests, higher-stakes quizzes, papers, formal speaking engagements, etc. You can find a list of tentative summative assessments here.
- ❖ ESSENTIAL Summatives: There are certain summative assessments you MUST complete in order to earn credit for the class. Please be aware that completing these assessments does not guarantee a passing grade! (In my experience, it takes a lot of effort NOT to pass the course . . . ;))
 - Semester 1 Summatives: Novel Reader's Notebook/Reflection / Prose Analysis Essay
 - Semester 2 Summatives: Novel Reader's Notebook/Reflection / Poetry Analysis Essay

The following grading scale will be used:

89.5-100%	=A
79.5 -89%	=B
70-79%	=C
60-69%	=D
59% and below	=F

Deadlines

Late work policy:

- Formative assignments: no late work except in extenuating circumstances.
- Summatives: 10% up to 1 week; 20% up to 2 weeks; not accepted after 2 weeks, unless ME (30% if after 2 weeks)

Creative and Personal Content Disclaimer:

While I encourage you to write about topics that are personal in nature, and I will always be respectful of personal expression, I do need to make you aware of one of my responsibilities. Please be advised that if you write about anything that implies that you could be harming yourself or others OR that you or others could be in danger, I am required by law to inform a school social worker, another school authority, and/or the Illinois Department of Child and Family Services.
